RESEARCH EMPHASIS & AESTHETIC CONCERNS

- Emphasis upon the American ceramic art sculpture movement; its history and impact on ceramics and upon those artists using clay in contemporary sculpture
- Researching, writing, and lecturing about American artists who work in traditional craft media in non-traditional ways, and whose aesthetic concerns transcend craft orientations
- Identification, documentation, and aesthetic analysis of artists worldwide who deal with social commentary in their ceramic sculpture. Most notable outcome of this research was curatorial grant from Exhibits USA for a three-year traveling exhibition at selected museums titled Confrontational Clay, 2009, a second exhibition, InCiteful Ceramics, 2014 with a two year tour and book, Confrontational Ceramics, A&C Black, London, 2008
- Developing strategies to re-vitalize three-dimensional craft/art making in K-12, with an emphasis upon secondary education. Most notable outcome board of K-12 Ceramic Art Foundation
- Organizing symposia, "The Case for Clay in Secondary Art Education", "Crossings, Alignments and Territories: Criticism in the Craft Arts," and five "Clay Forum" held biannually at New York University
- Researching Art Deco Porcelains of the Noritake Company, 1923-1932. Photography and manuscript completed. Exhibition at Nippon gallery, New York,
- Multiculturalism in the Crafts and interdisciplinary approaches to craft education organizing numerous workshops with guest artists across all media

- Design and Technology advances in Craft Education. Most notable outcome is Faculty Technology grant from ITS for training on computerized embroidery sewing machines which integrates Photoshop, Embroidery software and computerized sewing machines
- Future of Craft Education

PUBLICATIONS

a) Books

Confrontational Ceramics: The Artist as Social Critic

A&C Black, London: 2008. 260 pp.

This book, representing 246 artists from thirty-eight countries, focuses upon the work of an international group of artists who employ clay to attack, satirize and/or expose the perfidy of the human condition and its institutions. They use the devices of irony, parody, obscenity, erotica, introspection, violence, dream imagery, and the grotesque to convey their message. The book is divided into five areas—war/politics, gender issues, social/human condition, popular culture/consumerism, and the environment. The clay artist is seen as continuing the tradition of critical social commentary as an intrinsic element of cultural discourse.

Art Deco Ceramics: The Noritake Years 1921–1933

Photography and manuscript complete. Agent seeking publisher.

This book explores the various Art Deco themes used by the Noritake Company during the 'roaring twenties' to lure young ladies into the retail china shops for the purpose of exposing them to traditional dinnerware. Seen in this light, many of the motifs are viewed as coded messages. The book highlights the diversity of expression found in these works and contends that, as a body, they represent the first extensive introduction of Art Deco objects in America.
